Case Study: Anthony

Starting Progress Monitoring Using the Individualized Behavior Rating Scale Tool

After gaining consensus on the goals of intervention, Anthony’s team worked with the PTR facilitator to develop the Individualized Behavior Rating Scale Tool (IBRST). The PTR facilitator projected a blank IBRST document for all of the team to observe and guided its development by asking the teacher questions about the behaviors. The PTR facilitator first asked what measurement method for each behavior listed on the Goal Setting Form would be easiest for estimating behavior occurrence. The number of aggressive behaviors or episodes or the duration of the events were the options presented for physical aggression. The teacher said it would be most feasible to estimate the number of aggressive behavior episodes Anthony performed. The PTR facilitator then asked about...
